Excerpt: . . . 50-300 warheads along with modern aircraft and missile delivery means including the Jericho-2 missiles with a range of 1400 kilometers. The estimates are essentially based on statements to the London Sunday Times (published October 5, 1986) by the former technician at the Dimona nuclear reactor, Mordechai Vanunu, who claimed 18 that Israel was capable of producing 100-200 warheads. Regardless of the number of warheads, it should be noted that it was the States founder and its first prime minister, David Ben Gurion, who advocated during the 1950s the development of the nuclear option as an ultimate deterrent against the quantitative edge of the Arab military. From the beginning, Israel has pursued a deliberate policy of ambiguity with respect to its nuclear 19 option. Unlike its emphatic denials concerning an offensive chemical capability, Israeli leaders have consistently refused to either deny or affirm the existence of a nuclear program. The...
