A larger proportion of hydrochloric acid than is ordered above would remove the opalescence, but at the same time increase this tendency to atmospheric oxidation, as the following experiments show. The stannous chloride solution (20 c.c.) was mixed with varying amounts of strong hydrochloric acid (sp. g. 1.16), diluted to 100 c.c., and exposed in open beakers for varying lengths of time; and the residual stannous chloride measured by titration with permanganate. The quantities required were as follows: --Time Exposed. 50 per cent. Acid. 10 per cent. Acid. i per cent. Acid. I hour. 33.20.0. 34.40.0. 34.50.0. 1 day. 5.0 . 24.0 . 27.6 2 days. 3.0 . 14.5 . 21.3 These indicate very clearly the increased susceptibility to oxidation in strongly acid solutions. A standard solution of ferric chloride is prepared in the same manner as that described under the experiments on the methods of reduction; but it should be of twice the strength, so that 100 c.c. may contain i gram of iron. This solution is used for standardising the stannous chloride when required; and must be carefully prepared; and tested for the presence of nitric acid. The titration is more limited in its application than either of the oxidising processes because of the restrictions as to bulk, quality and quantity of free acid present, and other conditions...
