Extrait: . . . these are the names of some, and names which will at once suggest their several arguments. Some again are the working out of New Testament parables, such for instance as The Vineyard of the Lord, The Wheat and the Tares, The Hidden Treasure. Others are founded on legends of the Church, as The Leprosy of Constantine; while in others scriptural and ecclesiastical alike fall into the background, as in The Great Theatre of the World, The World's Great Fair, and he chooses a more purely ethical treatment of his subject. Several, again, are very curious, as being doubles of secular dramas of his own, generally with the same name which those bear, and intended to furnish a key to their inner intention. Thus, Lifes a Dream, of which an analysis is given in this volume, has a duplicate bearing the same name among the autos,...
